

DOJ Prepublication Review

28 CFR § 17.18

- Among the provisions on your non-disclosure agreement is that:
I [...] agree that I will never divulge classified information to anyone unless:
[...] (b) I have been given prior written notice of authorization from the United States Government Department or Agency (hereinafter Department or Agency) responsible for the classification of the information or last granting me a security clearance that such disclosure is permitted.
- NSD Records and FOIA staff reviews material for National Security Classified information in the prepublication review process under 28 CFR § 17.18.
- 28 CFR § 17.18 gives the AAG for National Security thirty working days period for this review.

DOJ Prepublication Review

28 CFR § 17.18

- Not limited to any type of material or disclosure or methods of production. Includes book manuscripts and all other forms of written materials intended for public disclosure, newspaper columns, magazine articles, letters to the editor, book reviews, pamphlets, scholarly papers, and fictional material.
- Oral statements are also within the scope of a prepublication review requirement when based upon written materials, such as an outline of the statements to be made.
- This obligation does not end with your separation from DOJ or from the government. The non-disclosure agreement remains in effect even after you do not have access to classified information.

DOJ Prepublication Review

28 CFR § 17.18

When appropriate we also coordinate with relevant components if their information is relevant to the draft publication, or if there are other issues that must be resolved before publication is approved.